

Celebrating women in particle physics

Women then ... women now

1955

Maria Fidecaro, Alec Merrison (later sir Alec), Alan Wetherell in 1955, at the Nuclear Physics Research Laboratory of the University of Liverpool.

1971

Kjell Johnsen shows Willi Jentschke and Hildred Blewett some of the emerging results.

1977

At S155, Dominique Guillemaud

1954

First PS magnet unit with members of the Magnet Group

2000

Members of the LHC cryogenic distribution line team at the test facility

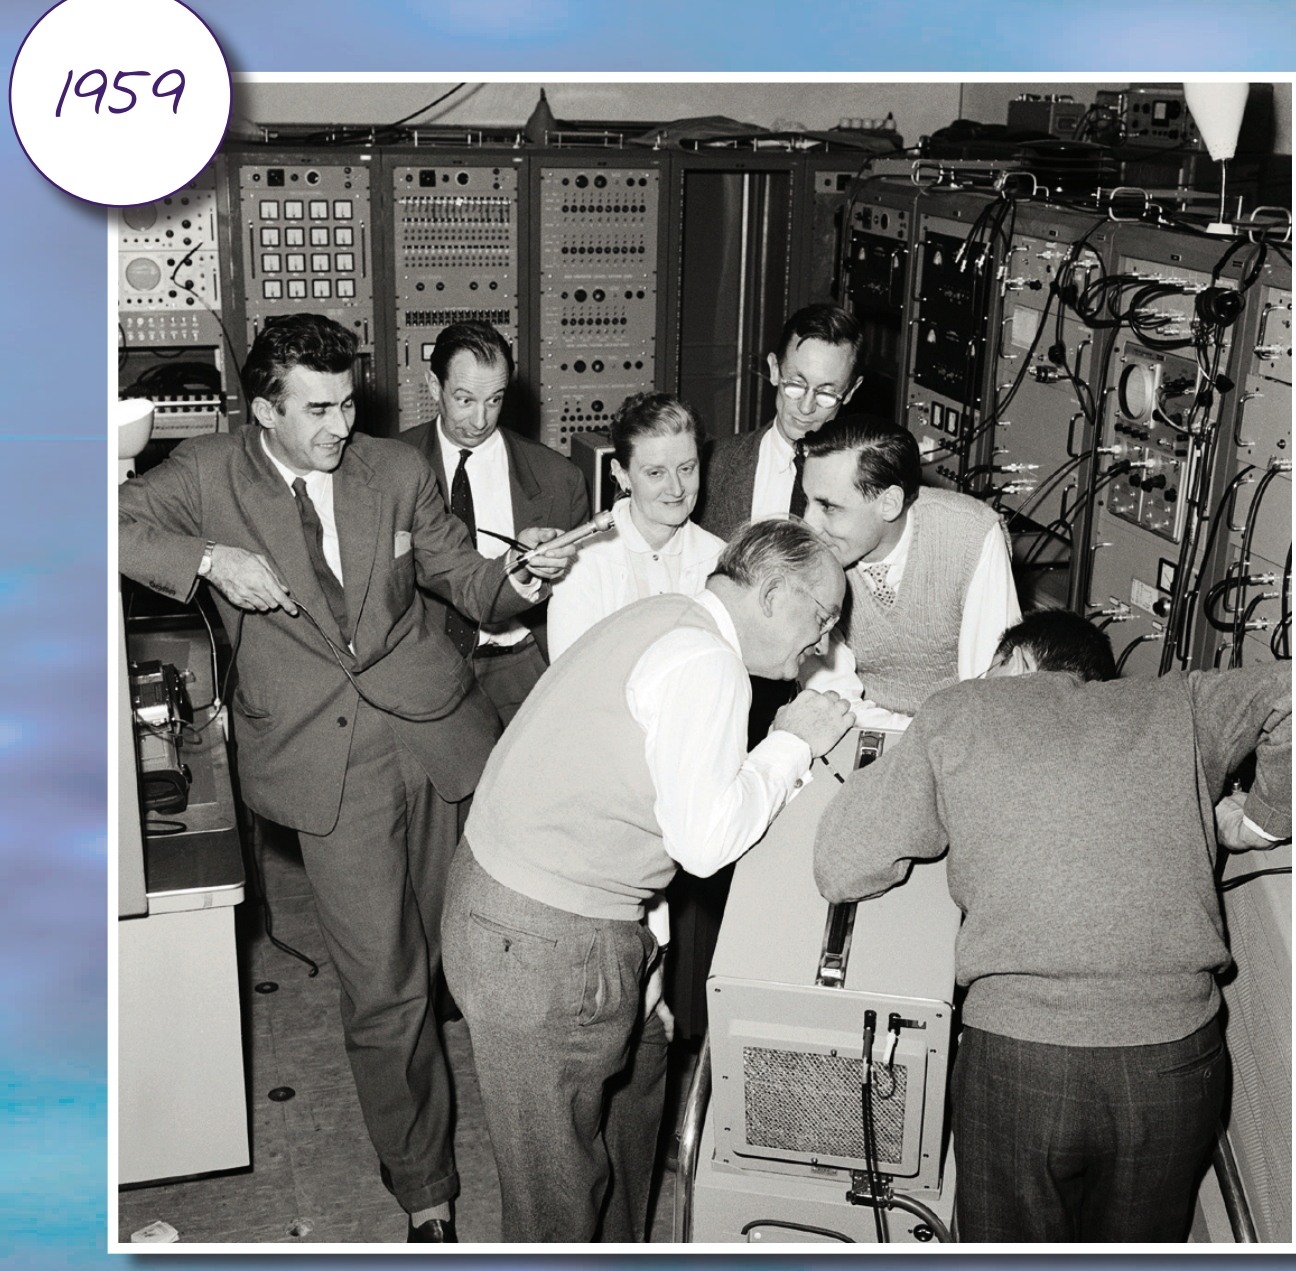

1976

Members of the third g-2 experiment CERN Muon Storage Ring Collaboration

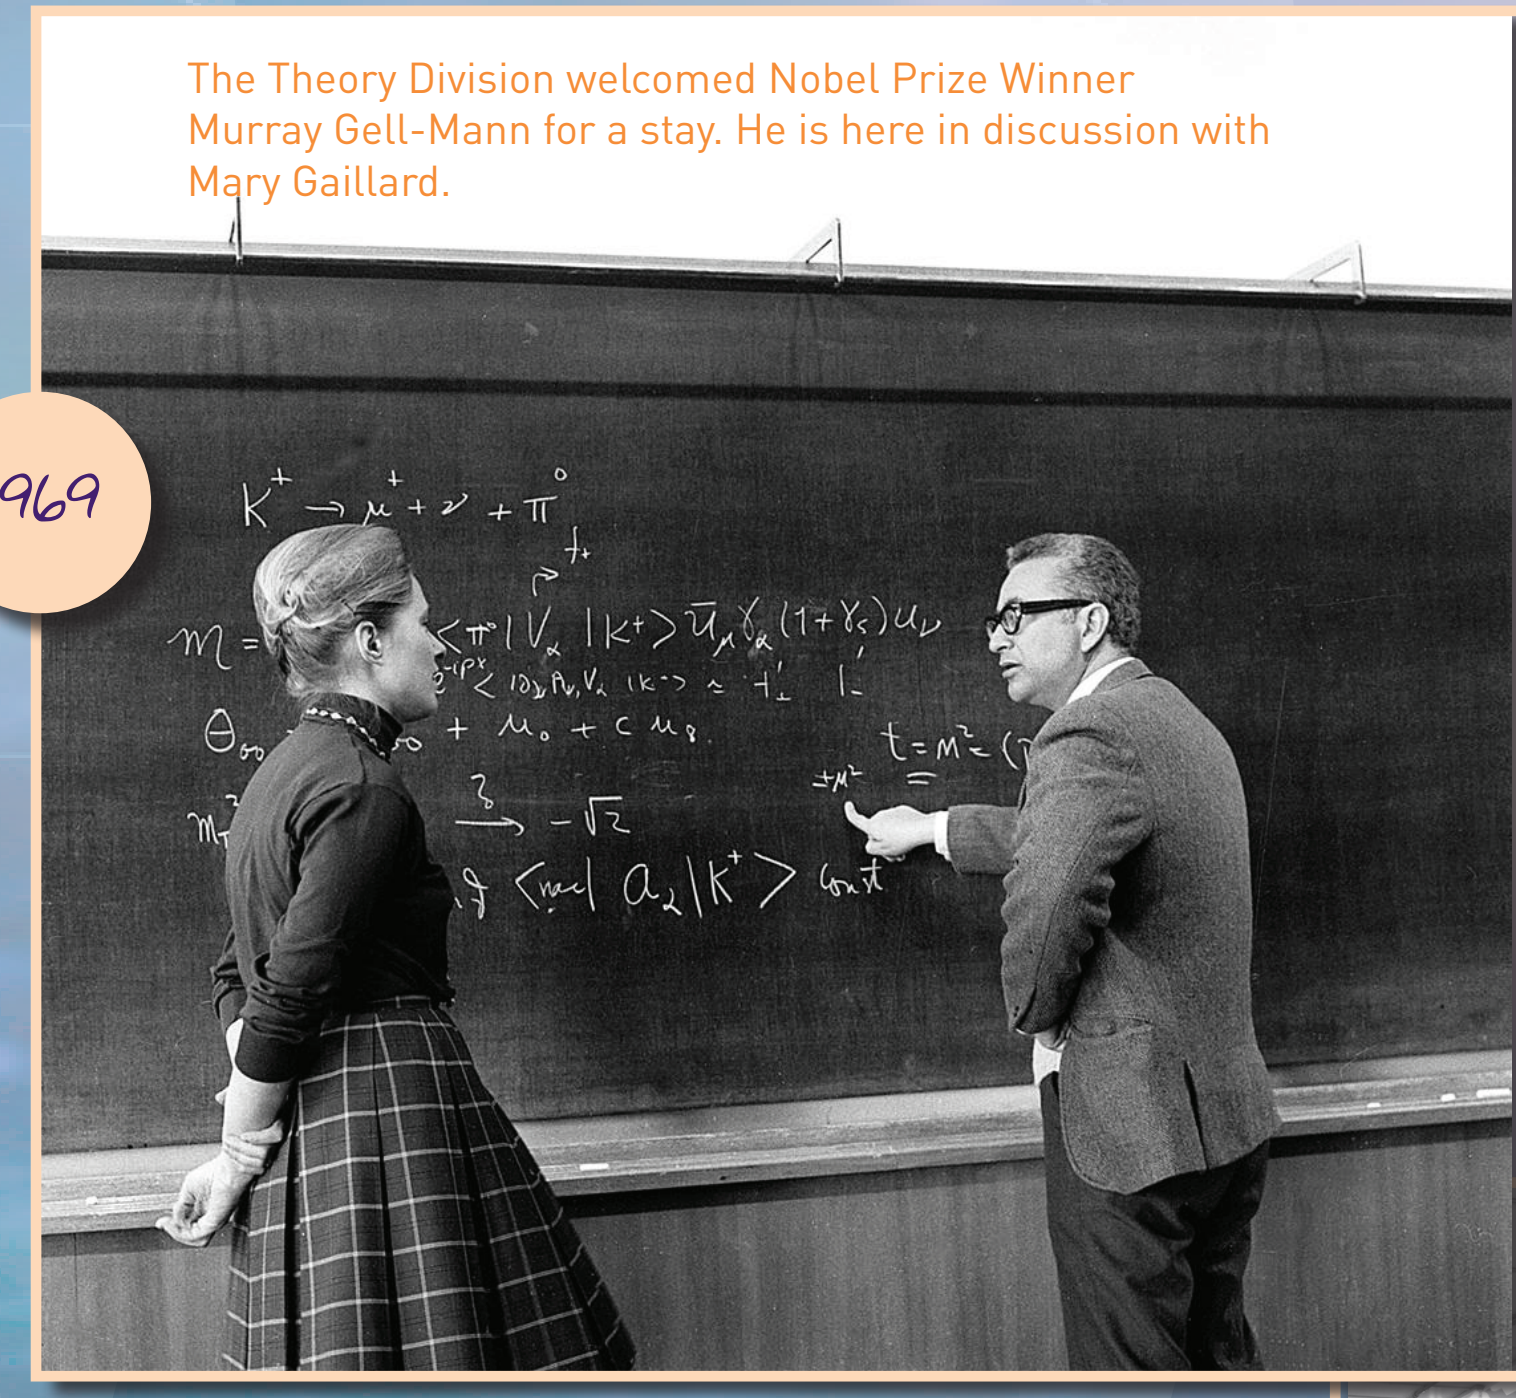

2007

Discussion at the coffee table, ATLAS.

1959

Start-up of the PS November 1959. During the first hours of the start-up of the PS in the control room, from left to right: John Adams, Hans Ceibel, Hildred Blewett, Chris Schmelzer, Lloyd Smith, Wolfgang Schnell, and Herre Germain

1969

The Theory Division welcomed Nobel Prize Winner Murray Gell-Mann for a stay. He is here in discussion with Mary Gaillard.

1974

Women scanned countless bubble chamber photos in the early days

1980

The Radiobiology Group: Karen Pomman, Marielena Stelit-Bianchi, Roger Paris

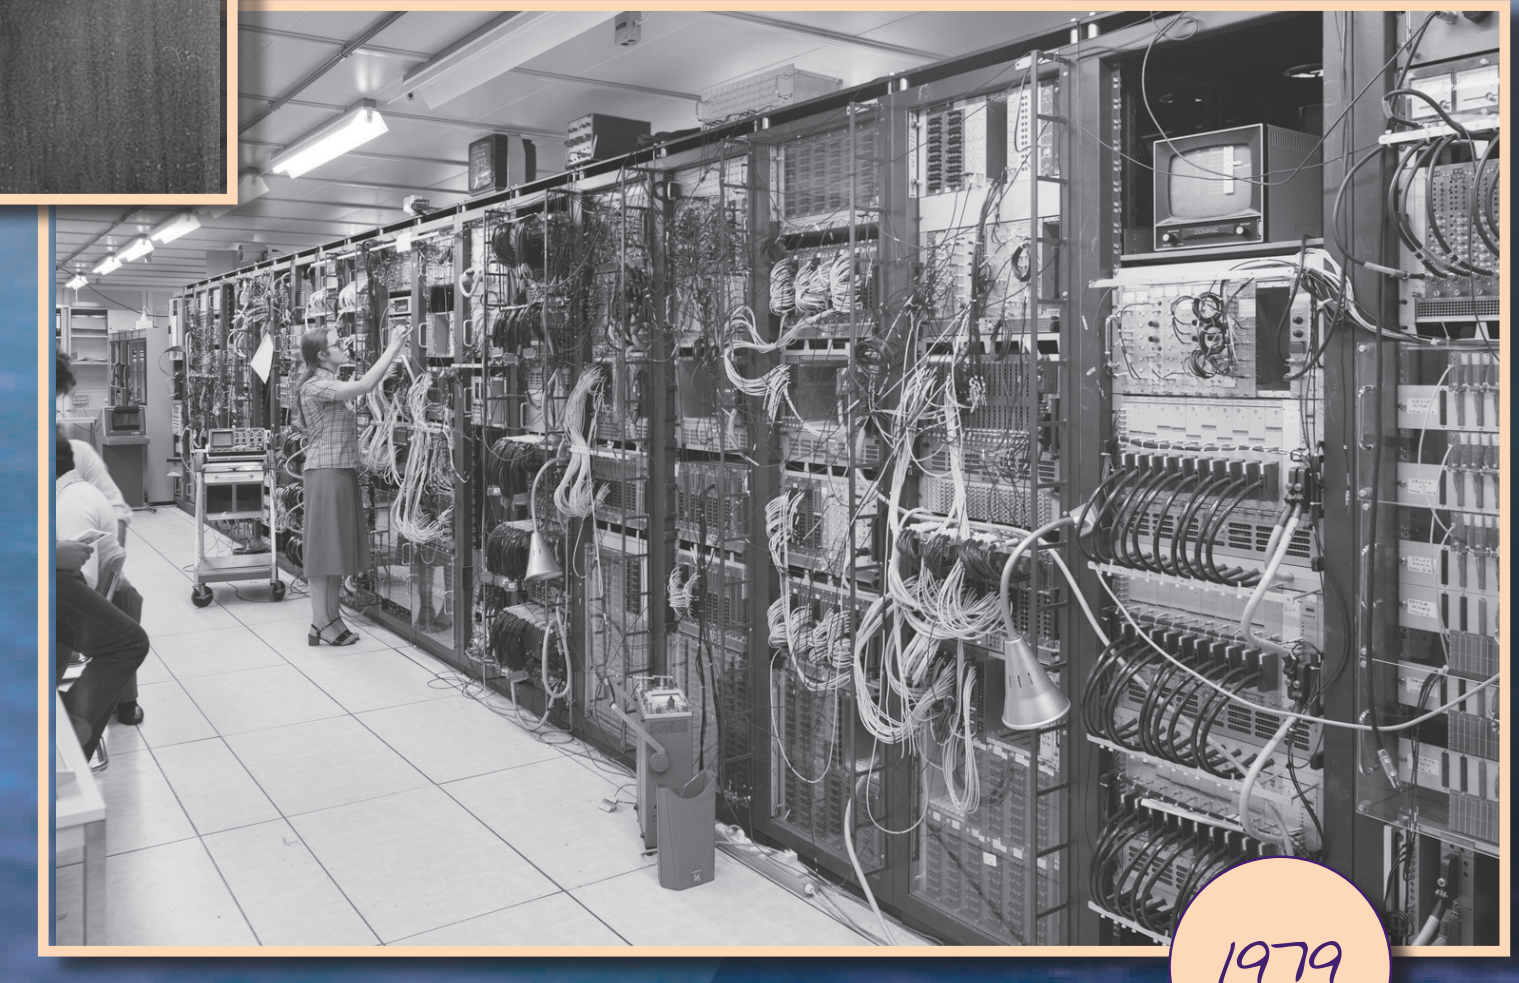

1963

Discussion at the coffee table: left to right V. Weisskopf, A. Orkin-Lecourtis and C. Reynu

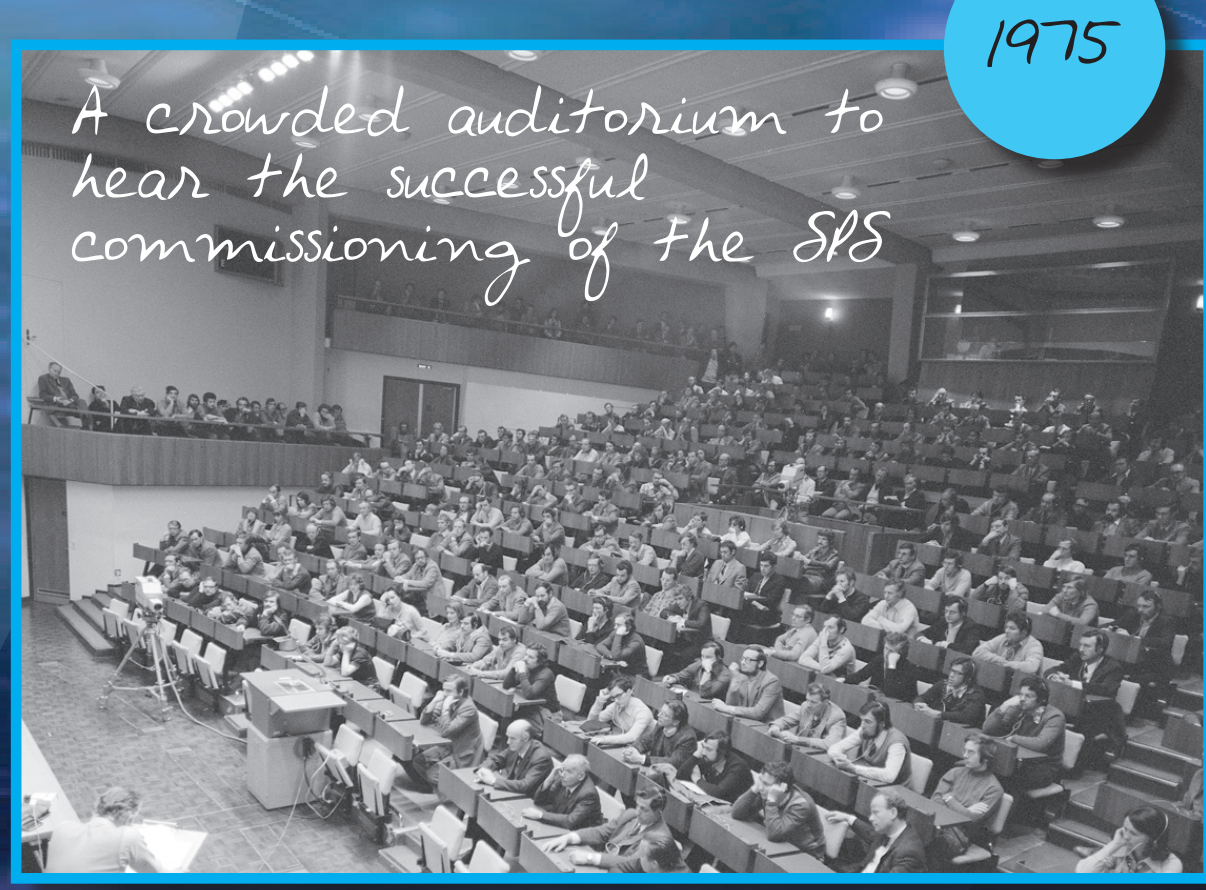

2009

Future members of SLHC for 2025? CERN Summer Students Program welcomed 40% women in 2009

1979

At NA1 the electronics barrack

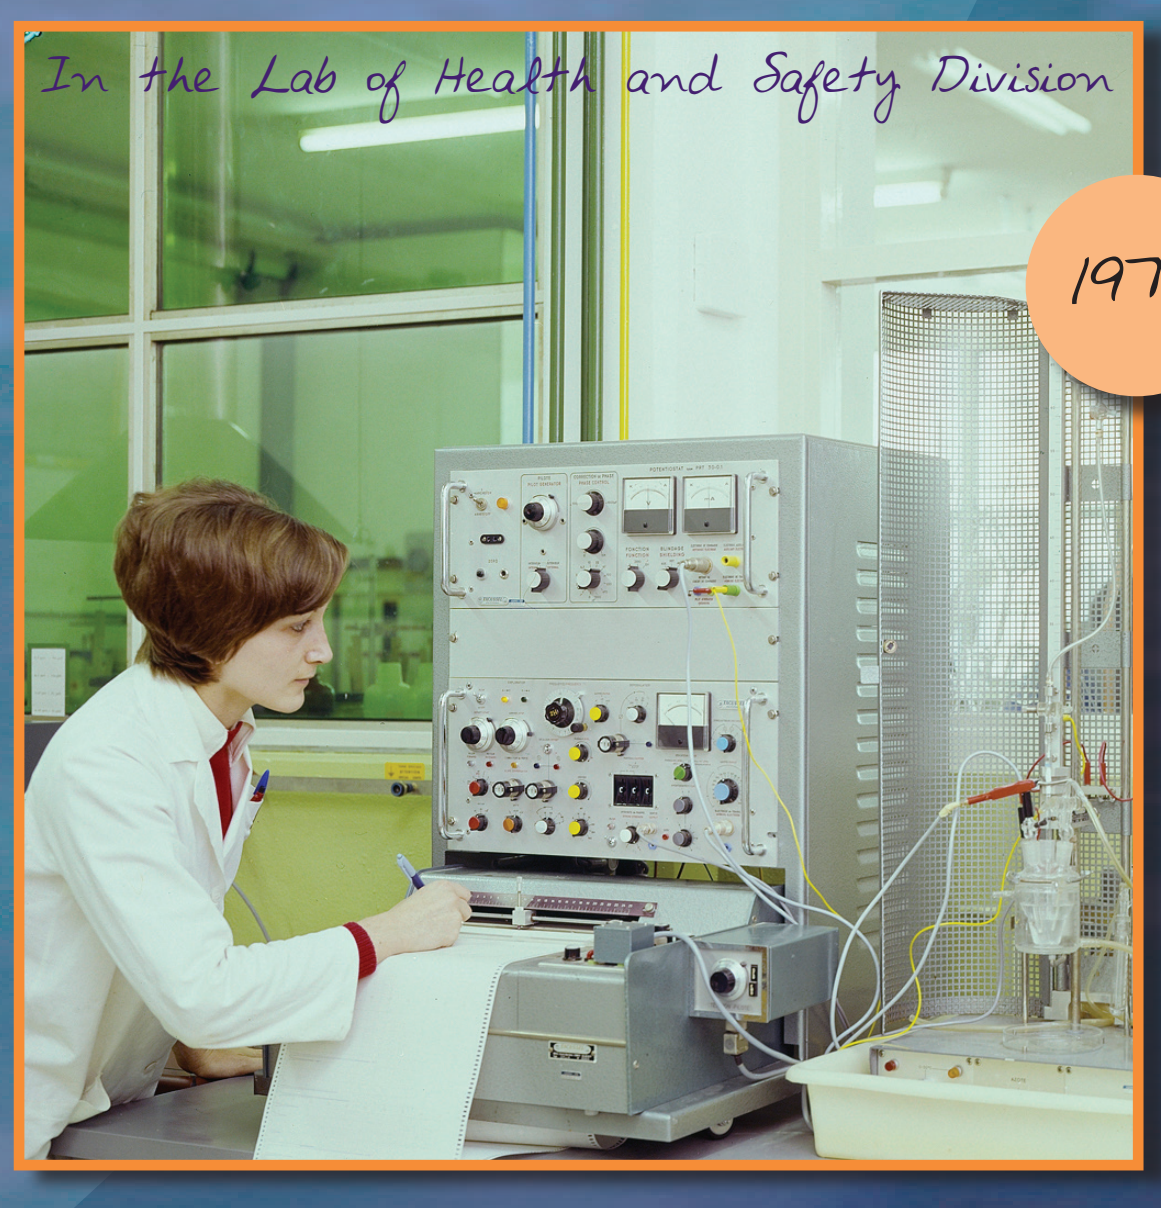

1975

A crowded auditorium to hear the successful commissioning of the SPS

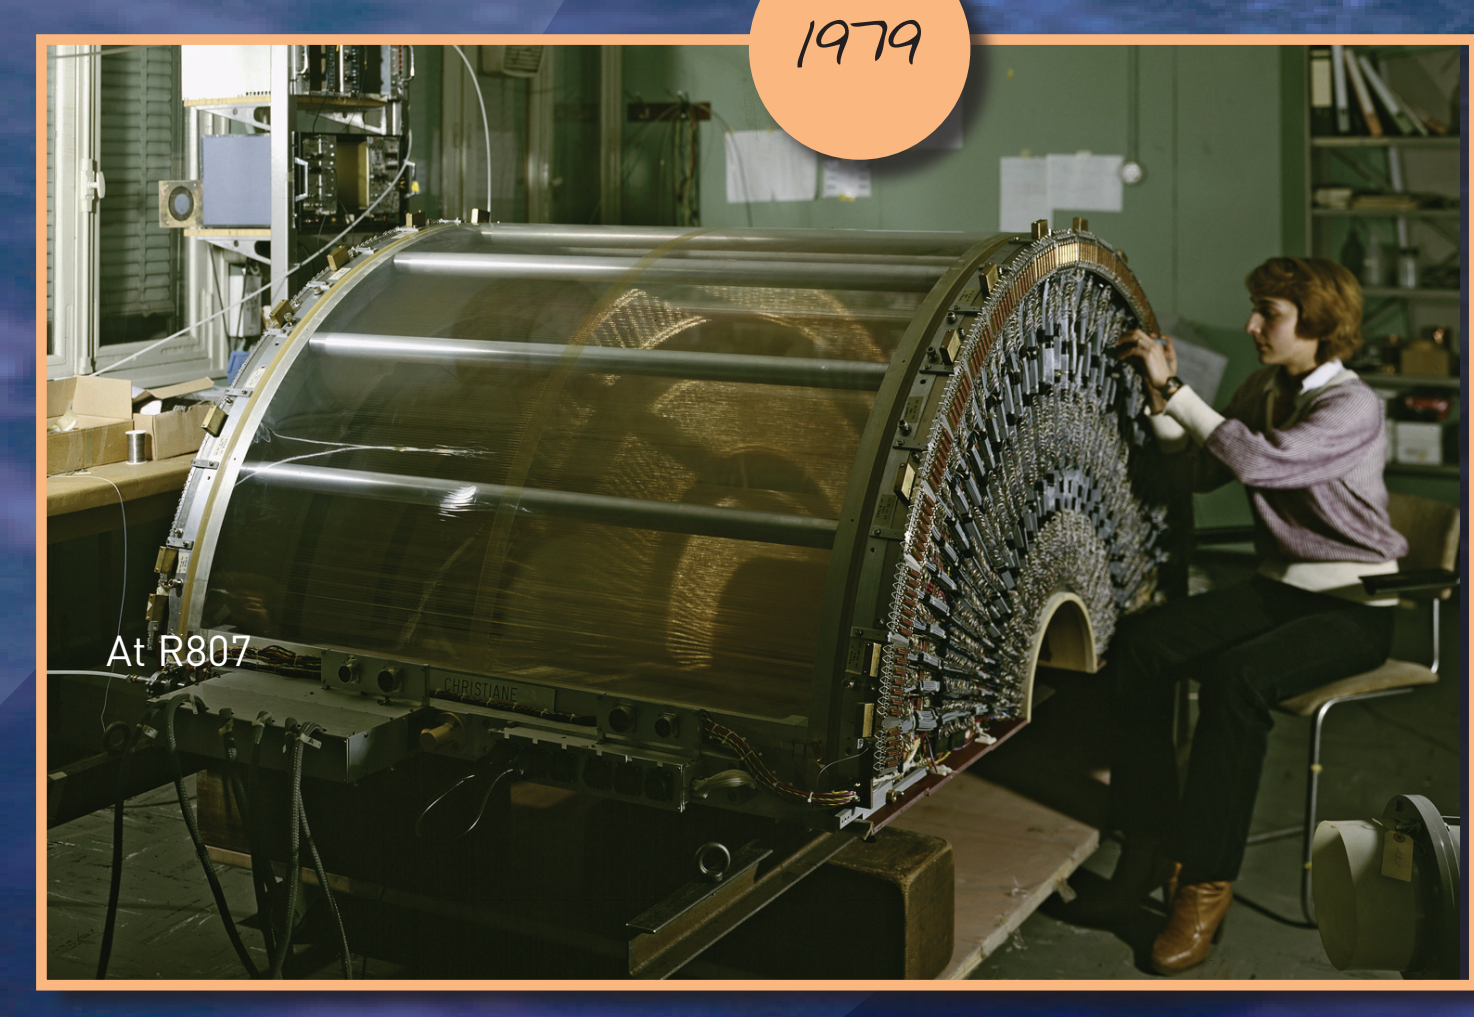

1962

Helmut Faissner and Maria Szeptyka

1977

In the Lab of Health and Safety Division

1979

At R807

2006

Plenary session of the ATLAS Trigger & Physics week at CERN Main Auditorium (30 Oct 2006)

